

PROJECT

New garden room and internal remodelling

DESIGN SUMMARY

The existing house was a typical Oxford terrace with a rear flat roof kitchen and bathroom extension that effectively separated the living spaces of the house from the garden.

The client wished to create a new garden living room with a remodelled kitchen, bathroom and dining room to the ground floor.

The final design was carried out under permitted development and did not need formal planning permission. It included relocating the bathroom and kitchen to the centre of the house and positioning a new main living space in a new extension adjacent to the garden. This room was vaulted with a high glass and timber screen that ensured natural light reached into the heart of the scheme.
